Office supplies vendor Fellowes recently welcomed invited guests to its new UK headquarters in Doncaster.

With the move from its old West Moor Park site, the firm has increased pallet capacity by around 20% to more than 12,000.

Fellowes European Marketing Director James Webb told the audience that the company was proud to move to a state-of-the-art building while offering the minimum possible disruption for the vast majority of its employees.

Back in April, the firm was the first confirmed tenant at the iPort site, a £500 million ($625 million) multi-modal logistics development in South Yorkshire. Fellowes has taken more than 144,000 sq ft (14,000 sq m) of space for distribution and office facilities. It has also had 19 HGV and 118 car park parking spaces built.

In total, the iPort site covers 337 acres (136 hectares) and six million sq ft of warehousing.
